

this weekend in kc

LIVE MUSIC, 30 | EVENTS, 32 | VISUAL ARTS, 33 | PERFORMING ARTS, 34

CHALK ANOTHER ONE UP TO ARTISTS

More than 100 artists will color the streets for the third annual Kansas City Chalk & Walk Festival at Crown Center Square, 2450 Grand Blvd., this weekend. (This is not to be confused with the Chalk Walk festival I wrote about in April, which was a whole other box of, um, chalk.)

This year the students, amateurs and professionals will work from three themes: their original art, duplicates of the masters and — to add whimsy — “Alice in Wonderland.”

Adding to the “Alice” aspect will be street performers in character costumes. Also look for musicians, dancers and vendors at the free fest, 11 a.m.-8 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Sunday. There will be plenty of stuff for the kids, including workshops, face-painting, puppet shows and an area for them to create their own chalk art. Kansas City

PAMELA E. SPENCER

SPENCER@KCSTAR.COM

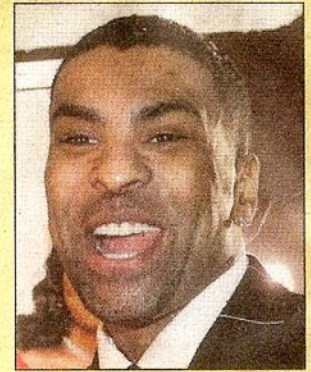

FROM KANSAS CITY CHALK AND WALK

The Kansas City Chalk and Walk Festival will add some color to Crown Center Square on Saturday and Sunday. The event includes music and kids activities.

Chalk & Walk Arts Educational Programs provide arts programs to children in need.

Volunteers are welcome, and Harvesters will collect food donations. Details at www.kcchalkandwalk.org.

today

Rub elbows with celebs at Arabian Nights at the Jones, 10 E. 13th St. The S.P.R.U.C.E. Foundation fundraiser includes a hair and fashion show at 8 p.m. at the rooftop pool featuring national and local designers. Singers Tank and Ginuwine (above) and football player Randy Moss are scheduled to attend. The foundation helps provide living assistance to Kansas Citians with mental or physical developmental disabilities. Tickets, $20-$50. Details, www.sprucekc.com.